RyeScape

The dramatic scenery of the North York Moors National Park is a striking contrast to the tranquil, gently rolling hills of the Yorkshire Wolds, and the patchwork of farmland in the Vale of Pickering and the Vale of York.

The mixed greens of fields and woodland in the Howardian Hills, an Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty, add further variation, whilst Ryedale's bustling market towns all have something different to enjoy.

Herbert Read Farmer's son Herbert Read was an art historian, poet, literary critic anarchist, pacifist and philosopher, best known for numerous books on art (including influential writing on the role of art in education) and as co-founder of the Institute of Contemporary Arts. He was born in 1893 at Muscoates, near Nunnington, lived for many years at Stonegrave and is buried at St Gregory's Minster.

Individual Artists

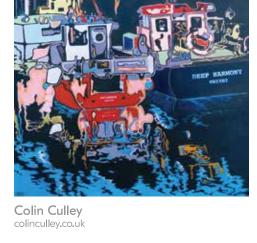

Ryedale's outstanding landscapes inspire the large numbers of professional artists who live and work here. The range of visual arts on offer encompasses sculpture, painting, ceramics, textiles, photography and far more: you will find cutting-edge contemporary practice alongside traditional watercolourists.

The gallery of artists includes websites, so you can see more of the work and seek out the galleries showing the artists whose work you enjoy. Many artists will also welcome visitors to their studios during Open Studios events or by appointment.
